ANNOUNCEMENT

Mrs. Ann T. Lila of Mesa, Arizona and Mrs. JoAnn R. Rice of Orlando, Florida have graciously accepted appointment to the staff of our newsletter. Your editor is delighted to have these two expert genealogists assist him in this volunteer effort to further our knowledge of the extended Tingle family.

EMERSON TINGLE OF MARYLAND (1852 - 1928)

Faithful supporters and readers of our newsletter are Mr. and Mrs. William E. Esham, Sr., of Berlin, Maryland. Before her marriage, Mrs. Esham was Anna Elizabeth Tingle, daughter of Clarence Emerson Tingle and his wife, Hessie Holland and granddaughter of Emerson Tingle and his wife, Annie Kate Ennis.

A recent letter from Mrs. Esham included a pretty winter snapshot of their home at 100 West Street in Berlin, Worcester County. They have lovingly restored this old house, named 'Robin's Nest,' which dates back to 1799 or 1801. This home and 'Caleb's Discovery,' which was pictured in the Spring 1990 issue of our newsletter were on the Maryland House and Garden Pilgrimage in April 1988. The story of these two landmarks is described below. Mrs. Esham graciously writes, "We would love to have any relative stop to see us. We are at home in Berlin from October to January and March to May." Mrs. Esham and her sister, Mrs. Mary Louise McAllister, were planning an Emerson Tingle Family Reunion on May 5th in Ocean City, Maryland, just seven miles from Berlin. More about this in a future issue.

ROBIN'S NEST

13. ROBIN'S NEST, 100 West St. Joining the list of houses in this area with similar origins and architectural designs is Robin's Nest. Nancy (Ann Catherine) Mills, lineally descended from William Fassett, married Thomas Timmons. They were the builders of this house which they called Cedars. Started in 1799 and completed in 1801, the gable-fronted, Federal-style house consisted of three rooms each on the first and second floors. At a later date the house was enlarged. The visitor will notice a second board-and-batten entrance door with a different exterior frame, as well as variances in the inside and outside structure of the house. This southside addition elongated the house to include a dining room and kitchen with bedrooms above. A one-and-one-half-story wing was also added. The house was purchased by deed in 1836 to John C. and Catharine (Harvard) Dirickson and remained in that family until the present owners purchased it in 1963. During the Dirickson period of ownership, the house name became Robin's Nest, which was derived from John "Robins" Purnell, who married Emma Catharine Dirickson. The present owners have remodeled the house without losing early 19th century charm. Some of the original floors and fireplaces have been restored, and many of the original window panes have been retained. The house is furnished with appropriate period pieces. Of particular interest is the owners' extensive collection of old English and American pewter and antique decoys. Out buildings, researched by the Williamsburg Foundation and found to be authentic, include a milk house with root cellar, a smoke house, privy, granary and chicken house. Also unearthed during renovation was a brick walk surrounding the grounds. Owners: Mr. and Mrs. William E. Esham, Sr.

15. CALEB'S DISCOVERY. With its stuccoed brick walls scored to resemble a masonry, this building appears to be a Federal townhouse. Actually, it consists of a brick colonial, two-room cottage with huge eight-foot fireplaces, "break-neck" stairway and loft. A hyphen and two-story addition were later connected to the original, and then the entire building was stuccoed. It is this incorporation of an early colonial house into a later structure without the loss of the earlier building's identity which makes Caleb's Discovery unique. The house is located on Hillard's Discovery, granted to Walter G. Powell, a Quaker from Virginia, by a 1667 land patent. Powell's daughter, Elizabeth, on December 22, 1683, married Hugh Tingle and in 1696/7 inherited one-half of Hillard's Discovery. Their descendants were granted additional land—Caleb's Discovery, Tingle's Addition, etc. A 1747 warrant to Daniel Tingle for seven and one-half acres stated: "These are Tingle's Addition beginning at marked black walnut in the said Tingle Plantation about three paces to the northward of said Tingle's house thence...." This would explain an early 18th century date for this dwelling. The property remained in the Tingle family until 1887; thus few land transfers can be found in the Court House. The house is listed in the National Register of Historic Places. Owners: Mr. and Mrs. William P. Phillips, Sr.

Emerson Tingle was born in January 1852 in Worcester County, the son of John Tingle (1798-1868) and his second wife, Mary Bowen (1825-1911). On November 17, 1880, a marriage license was issued to him at the Worcester County Court House in Snow Hill and on 22 November 1880 he and Annie Kate Ennis were married. The following information is taken from a photocopy of a page in the Emerson Tingle Family Bible which Mrs. Esham kindly supplied.

Clarence E. Tingle, the son of Annie K. & Emerson Tingle, was born in the year of our Lord, Oct. 11th, 1881 at Berlin, Maryland.

Minnie L. Tingle, the daughter of Annie K. and Emerson Tingle, was born in the year of our Lord, January 4, 1883 at Berlin, Maryland.

Charlie Tingle, was born in the year of our Lord, September 6, 1884 at Berlin, Maryland.

Johnnie Howard Tingle, the son of Annie K. and Emerson Tingle, was born in the year of our Lord August 12, 1889 at Berlin, Maryland.

Nellie Parson Tingle, the daughter of Annie K. and Emerson Tingle was born in the year of our Lord, December 9, 1894 at Berlin, Maryland.

Edwin Henry Tingle, son of Annie K. and Emerson Tingle, was born in the year of our Lord, September 22, 1897.

Emerson Tingle died in 1928, while his wife, Annie Kate Ennis, who was born in July 1862, died in 1937. They are buried in St. Paul's Episcopal Churchyard, Berlin. There is a lovely memorial stained glass window in the church bearing an inscription, "In memory of Annie K. and Emerson Tingle by their daughter, Minnie T. Kline."

The story of John Tingle, father of Emerson, who was affectionately known as "Gentleman John" will be told in a future edition of the newsletter, along with a picture of a family heirloom sent by Mrs. Esham and which has been treasured for generations. She and her sister are direct descendants of Hugh Tingle, progenitor of the Maryland line. And her two great grandchildren are the eleventh generation in a direct line. Wouldn't Hugh be proud!

WHO CAN HELP RUTH A. SCHALL?

One of our new contributors is Ms. Ruth A. Schall, 506 Bell Avenue, Fairfield, California 94533. She is a great granddaughter of Zadock Alfred Tingle, who died 3 November 1900 and is buried in Wildhorse Cemetery, McLouth, Jefferson County, Kansas. The 1870 and 1880 census for Kansas list his place of birth as Maryland, while his father's birthplace is given as Indiana and his mother's as Pennsylvania.

Ms. Schall says that Zadock was born about 1834 in Maryland, and afterwards married Betty Moore who was born in Indiana. They had six children born from 1865 to 1887, named: Elnora, Annie Grace, Sarah, Oscar, Ernest Bicknal and Eliza. The first named was born in Indiana while the remaining siblings were born in Kansas. Ms. Schall is descended from Annie Grace Tingle who married Myron Eugene Proctor.

Ms. Schall wants to learn more about Zadock Alfred Tingle, his father, etc. Can any of our readers help her? If so, please write to her at the above address. It will be appreciated if a copy is sent to your editor.

THANK YOU MR. CLARK!

★ The Maryland and Delaware Genealogist, in its Spring 1990 issue bestowed an unsolicited and complimentary review of our family newsletter. It goes on to say that "Articles on Tingles in Delaware (Capt. John 1815-1893), John in Maryland, Hugh in England and branches in North Carolina, Georgia, Indiana and Ohio are but a few of 39 articles in volume 2. Able editor is J. Seeger Kerns, assisted by six volunteers. Well done." ★

Mr. Raymond B. Clark, Jr. of St. Michaels, Maryland and his late mother have published this excellent genealogical magazine quarterly for the past 31 years. The staff of "Tingle Descendants" is appreciative of your praise, Mr. Clark!

WALTER R. TINGLE OF OHIO, 1870 - 1937

After some years of diligent research by numerous persons, the story of Walter R. Tingle can be told in rather brief form. Curiosity was initially aroused back in 1973 when Dolli Tingle (Mrs. Ward Brackett) of Westport, Connecticut, transmitted to your editor copy of a letter addressed to "Mr. Walter R. Tingle, Cambridge, Ohio" dated January 9, 1919. The writer was Thomas Radcliffe Tingle of Los Angeles, California. Apparently Walter had written to Thomas inquiring about the history of the Tingle family. (does that sound familiar?). The contents of that letter will be revealed in a future issue of our newsletter when the story of Thomas Radcliffe's life has been documented more authoritatively.

Our subject, Walter R. Tingle, was born 31 May 1870 in Liberty Township, Ohio, the son of Dr. George Todd Tingle and his wife, Amanda Shrigley. They were the parents of two boys and two girls. Walter's paternal grandfather was Dr. John Perry Tingle who married Amanda M. Clark.

Walter R. Tingle went to work for the Pennsylvania Railroad as telegrapher in Newcomerstown, Ohio. While a resident there he married Grace Baxter. Later he became chief in the office of the Division Freight Agent in Cambridge, Ohio but continued his residence in Newcomerstown until his retirement from railroad service about 1925. He and his wife then moved to California where they lived for twelve years before his death 1 February 1937 at his home in Long Beach. Death was caused by a stroke suffered a week earlier. Funeral service and burial were held the fourth of February at Long Beach. Mr. Tingle's only survivor was his wife. Census records and city directories indicate they had no children.

One interesting little incident in his life indicates that upon his father's death on 1 May 1903 he was bequeathed a "gold headed cane with compass and square." This would appear to be the cane pictured in the Summer 1989 issue of 'TINGLE DESCENDANTS', Vol. 2 - No. 4, pp. 6-7.

Your editor is indebted to Mrs. Mildren H. Warden of Cambridge, Ohio for her persistent research without which this short sketch could not have been completed. Also, my thanks to Mr. Lewis M. Tingle of Cambridge, Ms. Lois Bell of the Guernsey County District Public Library, Cambridge and to Dolli Tingle of Westport, Connecticut for assistance in supplying much useful information. Mrs. Wardens' ancestor chart is included in this issue.

THE STORY OF A COURAGEOUS TINGLE GRANDMOTHER!

Mrs. JoAnn R. Rice of Orlando, Florida has sent a poignant letter and news article about her grandmother, Nelle Mabel Trisler Tingle of Johnson County, Indiana. Jody writes with a sense of humor but always gets the facts which isn't easy to do when recounting family history of by'gone days.

November 2, 1989

Dear Seeger:

The enclosed copy of a newspaper clipping, is about my grandmother Tingle. It may be of interest to others, just for the historical value alone.

"Mom Tingle", as we all called her, was always the backbone of her family. She raised 3 grandchildren, through their school years, and ended with great grandchildren spending most of their weekends with her. I was the only grandchild that she did not raise, but all the others had nothing but praise for her.

I never thought of her as handicapped or scarred in any way. My first memories of her were, that she was a sweet, old, lady with white hair, who always wore high neck dresses and made the best Chicken and Dumplings in the world. Her Angel Food Cake was one of my adult goals, which I never did match. Thank God for cake mixes!

From a grandmother's perspective, I see now, that she sacrificed most of her life for her family. My grandfather, Cecil Ray Tingle, b 1880, married Nelle Mabel Trisler in 1899, before they turned 19 years old. He was a Barber and during their first year of marriage, traveled to small towns throughout southern Indiana, to do barbering for coal miners, usually in tents or upstairs in saloons. As soon as their family started, they settled down in Whiteland, Indiana and remained there the next sixty years. He had a shop of his own, in town, until the depression came along. He then moved his shop to a back room of their home, where it remained until his death in 1953. We grandkids always had fun playing in his barber chair. That is, when he was not around to stop us. It was great fun to crank it up as high as possible and then give each other a hard spin, and then plopp the chair into a horizontal position. Oh the thrills and adventures of childhood!

Mom Tingle always raised about 100 Chickens and Pop raised some Rabbits and planted a big garden. Most of their needs were met, as per food and lights, etc. However, they had some very close years and learned to live on what they raised. They grew Grapes, Apples, Peaches, Tomatoes, Corn, Pop Corn, Rhubarb, Gooseberries, and Blackberries. The only time they ate Beef, was when one of their children or grandchildren brought it in. They also had a large vegetable garden with several kinds of Beans and Peas and Peppers, etc. As a city girl, I always looked forward to going to Mom and Pop Tingles for dinner, or a few days visit in the summer. My mouth still waters, when I think of the fresh, fried chicken and mashed potatoes she cooked.

My mother's memory of that terrible day in 1909 remained very vivid, although she was only about 4 years old...She said her mother was preparing to cook breakfast, while she and her 8 year old sister were just getting out of bed. Their mother always filled the wood burner tank on the cook stove, with short pieces of kindling wood. Then she would also stock the fireplace with larger pieces of wood, pour a little Kerosene over both places and then light a match and start both fires. On this fateful day, there was still a small red ember, down below the kindling in her stove. As soon as the gasoline reached the ember, everything blew. The force of the explosion either blew her through the back door, or she ran through it, trying to reach the well. The story goes, that she jumped into their well, near the back door, to extinguish the flames. She did not remember anything. The neighbor ladies spread apple jelly over her burns, in a effort to relieve her pain. Her recovery was very slow and very painful. My mother remembers pulling on her Mom's arms, trying to make them stay uncurled. The therapy must have worked, because she had almost full use of both arms in later years. She had a little problem with combing her hair, because she could not bring both arms up at the same time, because of scar tissue. Today, plastic surgery probably could have improved her quality of life greatly. (See article) →

That beautiful, little lady touched all our lives, in ways that I'm sure she never dreamed of....Her home and life style, moved me to write the enclosed poems. Both have been published in National Poetry Contests Books, in the past two years. You are welcome to use them, if you like.

Sincerely,

Jody

FROM JOHNSON COUNTY NEWS
GREENWOOD, INDIANA

Over My Shoulder...

(BY FRANCES SCOTT)

"SAFE AND SANE FOURTH" was the nation-wide safety slogan when I can first remember - back half a century ago. This was one of the recollections that came to my mind when I noted that this Saturday we are celebrating our 188th Independence Day. Currently the nation-wide safety campaign has a different slogan - "Fasten Your Seat Belt." In the long years of my memory we have had many safety campaigns as changes in products and people's habits created new hazards to life and limb. An item in last week's News reminded me of one of these hazards, and one of the tragedies that occurred before effective "safe and sane" handling of an ordinary everyday product were adopted. That item in the News noted the passing of Nelle Tingle in her 84th year. She was not quite 30 years old when she became the victim of a tragic accident. She carried the scars to her grave.

Although the accident happened when I was a little girl just starting to school, I remember it as though it were yesterday. You see, Nelle's father and my father were brothers. Nell's father was the oldest of a family of eight, and my father was next to the youngest. Her father died when Nelle was just an infant, and later when my father and mother married she lived in their home. My older sisters and brother always loved her as though she were really their big sister. She was married and had two girls near my own age when I can first remember. We used to ride the interurban to Whiteland where they made their way home to "spend the day." It was quite an event for us. It was a big trip and we had lots of fun. We were looking forward to such a trip within a few days when the accident happened. It was years before we were able to just casually go to spend the day - or even an hour with our beloved Nelle.

The care with which gasoline and other volatile fuels are handled today are more or less taken for granted. But, as usual, people got hurt and people were killed before those safe and sane handling procedures were evolved. In the early 1900's we mostly used coal and wood and even dried corn cobs for fuel! The use of kerosene and gasoline for cooking fuels was an innovation. The use of electricity for lighting was spreading rapidly, but electricity for cooking? Nonsense! Why we didn't even have electric irons! Charcoal irons were the step-saving, labor saving laundry item of that era.

Kerosene and gasoline were dispensed by our grocery stores. Oh, if you had an "automobile" you could get at a garage, if, to be sure, you could find a garage! Honest, in 1910 there weren't many - the livery stables still far outnumbered them. But there was a third dispenser - it was the horse drawn tank trucks. They also went from house to house. They covered their routes once a week, delivering "oil for the lamps of Johnson County" and other places, I suppose. And for the new "Summer" cook stoves that didn't heat up the kitchen nearly so much as the old fashioned range, for once an iron range got hot enough to cook a meal it stayed that way for "quite a spell." The first of the "Summer" cookstoves did burn the less volatile kerosene; later a different type burner was invented which burned gasoline. But both of them had the advantage of concentrating heat on the bottom of a cooking pan, and of being cold as soon as it was turned off! Believe me it was an advantage that was a blessing for the housewife! Everyone wanted one!

At our house we had a gasoline stove. We used kerosene in our lamps. We got our fuel from a tank truck. So far as I know there were no regulations about a storage container with a spigot at the age container for your household supply. We had a five-gallon metal container with a spigot at the bottom and that made lamp-filling quite handy. The tank on the stove was metal, and it was filled on the stove as I recall. But even then they wouldn't fill the tank on the stove if the stove was burning. But that was the tank-truck man's common sense rule, it wasn't a law. And you could store kerosene or gasoline in any container you chose - it didn't even have to be labeled. Truthfully, most householders had no idea that gasoline had such explosive potentialities - they just knew that it made a hotter fire than the familiar kerosene.

In our Cousin Nelle's home they didn't use gasoline, just kerosene. The day before the tragedy they had had their kerosene can filled at the grocery store as was their habit. The wholesale tank truck had delivered a supply of both kerosene and gasoline to the grocer just a short time before. Somewhere an error had occurred, for the grocer had gasoline in his kerosene tank. In the early morning hours of the next day, Nelle's stove exploded inflicting third degree burns over half her body. Across town a little girl standing by her mother when a similar explosion occurred, was fatally burned. No one else had purchased "kerosene" from the grocer after the tank had been filled. These accidents and, sadly enough, more similar mishaps finally led to the "red" gasoline can; the clearly labeled container regulations, and eventually they took both fuels out of food stores. A measure of safety and sanity had come to another facet of our everyday lives.

I've tried to write dispassionately about Nelle's accident. But the first news brought chills of horror and disbelief. Her life was despaired of for weeks. Who can account for the will-to-live of a mother of younger children? Then for months it seemed that even though she lived, she would live the life of an invalid. Two years passed and she was up and about, still not able to dress herself unaided, or comb her hair. Her mother, her daughter and her neighbors were her willing helpers, but she never gave up trying to be able to do for herself and keep her own house. She succeeded admirably.

 JOANN RICE
1246 RHODES CT.
ORLANDO, FL. 32808

We have photographs that show Nellie as a beautiful little girl, a beautiful young lady, and a beautiful young woman with a pretty baby in her arms. The intense flash fire from the explosion burned deep from her cheeks down over both arms and the front of her body. Her sparkling blue eyes never changed. Her grooming had always been fastidious; and her sense of fashion was nearly faultless. The restrictions of her scarred face and crippled arms were met as just another challenge. She lived a full life for fifty years after a less courageous soul would surely have perished. And she enriched all of us whose life she touched. In writing of her passing, one of the family said, "She was still a beautiful woman."

A portion of our accidents are due to lack of information, of course. Many things which CAN be handled safely are not so handled because of our impatience with restrictions. Long before laws were passed to make our Independence Day celebration "safe and sane", we used to have Roman candles and skyrocketes at our home, but they were nailed to fence posts and trees and lighted with long tapers. But too many people ended up the Glorious Fourth minus a hand, some fingers, or even an eye because these explosive but beautiful fireworks were improperly handled. For years people were implored to handle fireworks in a "safe and sane" manner. Eventually their sale to private individuals was prohibited by law.

Goodness only knows why we have to be implored to behave in a safe and sane manner in the face of known hazards to life and limb. Why makers and purveyors of hazardous materials need legislation that requires them to handle their product with respect to customers safety is also a mystery. As much as we deplore laws and government agencies that restrict our personal freedom, it seems that this is the only way to see that we can be protected from our own recklessness. But on a day dedicated to celebrating freedom and independence, I just thought we might pause to promise ourselves to be free and independent enough to also be "safe and sane," without coercion.

Two of our faithful contributors, Mrs. Ann T. LILA OF Mesa, Arizona and Mrs. Joan K. Tingle of Valley Center, California, are researching Arrington K. Tingle, youngest son of John and Sara Purifoy Tingle of North Carolina and Monroe County, Georgia. His name has been variously spelled in the records as ARRINGTON, ARENTON, ORANGTON. Mrs. Lila writes:

" Several of us are seeking information on the children of John and Sarah Purifoy Tingle of NC and Monroe County, GA. I find that their youngest son, Arrington (A.K.) Tingle, born in GA c 1820-1822, settled in Tallapoosa Co., ALA between 1850 and 1860, apparently remaining there the rest of his life. The census is as follows:

1850 Monroe Co, GA, 60th Div, p. 74

Orangton TINGLE, 28, male, tenant, b. GA. (line 19)

Lenorah TINGLE, 27, female, b. GA. (line 20)

1900 Tallapoosa Co, ALA, ED 82 (Pct 17, Daviston), p. 10, line 85 SOUNDEX

TINGLE, Lavinia A, white, b. Sept 1823, age 76, b. GA. Living alone.

My last evidence A.K. was alive: 6 April 1884, when he wrote a note to his nephew Thos. H. Holloway, Hawkridge, ALA, requesting information about his sister "Siddie" who married William Holloway (in Monroe Co GA, 1824). He reports that all the kin in Georgia are well except Brother Dan. signed A. K. Tingle, Matilda, ALA. "

Apparently A. K. had no issue, none appeared on the census any time.

If any reader can help Mrs. Lila, please drop her a note at 1423 East 3rd St., Mesa, Arizona 85203. Your editor will appreciate a copy of same because other readers are interested

TINGLES IN ALABAMA

About a year ago Mrs. JoAnn R. Rice of Orlando, Florida received an interesting letter chock full of genealogical information from Mr. Richard Warren Tingle, an attorney living in Huntsville, Alabama. So much material has flowed into your editor's desk that it was not possible to share it with our readers until now. The eight pages of charts, etc. included with this issue are part of his ancestral chain running through Marvin Noel Tingle, James Richard Tingle, George Washington Tingle and Jesse Franklin Tingle. Future issues of the newsletter will carry more information about this branch of the Tingles.

Richard Warren Tingle

Father: Marvin Noel Tingle

Grandfather: James Richard Tingle

Great Grandfather: George Washington Tingle
b. 7-18-1853, Ala. d. 10-10-1936, Lawrenceburg, Tn.
m. Margaret Ann Livingston, 11-29-1877, Cullman Co., Ala.
(b. 3-9-1858, Ala.
d. 8-2-1929, Lawrenceburg, Tn.)

Great Great Grandfather: Jesse Franklin Tingle (Believed to have lived in Gadsden, Ala. ★ then Addison, Ala. (near Jasper), and is buried in Addison, Ala.)
m. Clara Breeden

Attached is a rough "tree" depicting what my father knows about his family line. Also attached is a copy of handwritten notes about the children and grandchildren of George Washington and Margaret Ann Livingston Tingle. They were given to me by a relative and are believed to have been copied from a Bible or provided orally by a relative. Therefore, I cannot vouch for the accuracy of dates, spelling, etc.

Some of my information about the family has come indirectly from an Oklahoma resident and descendant of Margaret Ann Livingston who was researching the Livingston family line.

The only family member known to me who has compiled extensive information is one of the granddaughters of George Washington Tingle: Ora Marie Tingle Young (Mrs. L. R. Young) of Lawrenceburg, Tennessee. She is the daughter of my Great Uncle, William Marion Tingle, who moved from Cullman County, Ala., to the Lawrenceburg, Tenn. area in the early decades of this century. Marie has compiled a brief document entitled "Family Lines Involving Tingle - Walker - Denson - Livingston - Alexander - Breeden - Head." Unfortunately, the information for the Tingles does not extend much further back than what is available in various forms in what I am sending you. However, I have enclosed the first few pages detailing the William Marion Tingle descendants.

I hope that the information I have will be of some use to you. I wish you success with your research and would be interested in additional information that you may find.

P.S. I have more detailed information about my father's brother and sisters but did not think that would interest you. It can be provided.
 There are other distantly related branches of the family about which I have no information in Corner, Ala. (many Tingles in Birmingham also); near Double Springs, Ala.; and around Tuscaloosa, Ala.

A BOOK WORTH READING!

Quite a few readers of our newsletter are avid genealogists and all are interested, to varying degrees, in their Tingle ancestry. For those who may be thinking of writing a family history, your editor recomemnds highly a book published in 1989 by Weidenfeld & Nicolson, New York.

Titled "Our Kind of People: The Story of an American Family" by Jonathan Yardley, a Pulitzer Prize-winner, the author makes full use of the "voluminous correspondence and records with which his parents documented every major transaction and event in his family for fifty years." To quote from the book cover, Jonathan Yardley paints "an eloquent and deeply affecting portrait of an American family and of a way of life that has now all but passed, but which he has brought back to life with grace, humor, integrity, and moving style. It is at once a family memoir and a central piece of our own heritage."

I found this book to be delightful reading of one man's family. In place of dreary genealogy, Yardley brings to life the hum'drum daily happenings of that household.
