TINGLES IN THE NEWS!

THE NEW YORK TIMES, THURSDAY, AUGUST 2, 1990

Fred Mertz for The New York Times

Alta Tingle started as a landscape designer and now stocks the Gardener in Berkeley, Calif., with indoor/outdoor furniture and accessories.

For a long while, when she was a garden designer in Los Angeles, Ms. Tingle had the idea of bringing "the garden and the home to the marketplace together." Teaming up with Michael Parrent, a Los Angeles designer, gave her the opportunity to "creasingly mute the lines between outside and the inside."

Five years ago Ms. Tingle opened the Gardener, a store in Berkeley, Calif. "People still come in here expecting it to be a nursery," she said. "But the ratio of garden to home things is about the way people live. No matter how passionate you are about the garden, you still have to cook and sleep indoors."

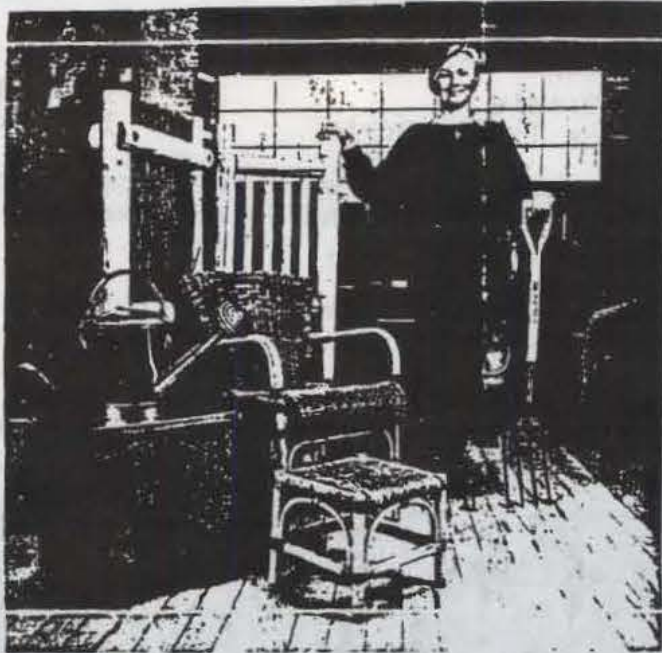

The Metropolitan Home magazine of October 1988 also carried a story and picture of Alta Tingle shown herein. Our thanks to Dolli Tingle Brackett of Westport, Conn. for these clippings.

THE NEW GREENHOUSE EFFECT

"I WANT TO BRING THE POSSIBILITY OF A BEAUTIFUL garden into the lives of people who live in a condo on the 17th floor," says Alta Tingle of The Gardener, a Berkeley store that works to bring the great outdoors inside. About as far from a conventional garden center as Dean & DeLuca is from a grocery store. The Gardener offers its own earthly delights: sun that pours through the skylights, an artful blend of earthy rich textures from its poured cement and Douglas fir floor to its rough-textured gray plaster walls. The furniture and accessories—like honey-colored rattan chaises from Palecek, the classic Adirondack chair, stone-topped tables with chestnut bases, milling stools from Mexico, rough Guatemalan table linens and simple New Mexican pottery—bring a new level of sophistication to the Sixties cry of back-to-nature.

ALTA TINGLE

"OUR PHILOSOPHY is to provide things that continually cross boundaries," says Tingle, a former landscape designer who wanted to do for gardeners what Williams-Sonoma did for cooks. Her new Berkeley store, with its sensuous mix, brings the outdoors into city lives.

EMERSON TINGLE FAMILY REUNION

Ocean City, Maryland was a little more crowded than usual over the May 5th weekend when 59 descendants of Emerson Tingle held a festive reunion. Anna Tingle Esham and her sister, Mary Louise Tingle McAllister hosted the event which started with dinner at the famous Phillips' Crab House on Saturday.

The following day they entertained at the Esham's lovely home 'Robin's Nest' situated in Berlin about seven miles distant and then took them to brunch in the lately restored Atlantic Hotel which is celebrating its 100th birthday. To quote Anna "they had a ball!"

It is well nigh impossible to obtain a good black and white print of a color photo but the snapshot below revealed eight happy participants - all first cousins:

THE RESTLESS ANCESTOR

Bless the ancestors who grow up and stay in their own neck of the woods, for they are so much easier to find and record.

George Robert Tingle, born 6 March 1836, in Norwich, Ohio, son of Judge Joseph D. Tingle¹ and grandson of my great, great grandfather, George Roberts Tingle, is not one of those ancestors easy to follow. As Seeger says, "he has led many of us a merry chase", mainly because way back in our Tingle searching Sid Tingle in Lincoln, Nebraska discovered an 1898 letter written by George in which he bragged that his son was writing a history of the Tingle family.

This sparked a splurge of letters among a group of us who thought we'd find this history and skip a lot of genealogical digging. The history, we fear, was never written. But George turned out to be a mover and even a bit of a shaker. In fact, for a moment there, we had thought he was the first Governor of Alaska.

George probably inherited his itchy foot from his grandfather, George Roberts Tingle, along with his name.² At any rate, he left home at 16, going to Wheeling, Virginia, (now W.VA.) and got a job in a wholesale shoe store. He became a bookkeeper and progressed to a partnership in a wholesale grocery firm.³ By 1876 he was 40 years old and a sheriff. In 1880 he ran for Congress but didn't make it.⁴

In the meantime he was a member of the City Council, the Board of Supervisors, President of the Regency Board of the Hospital For The Insane, and Chairman of the Capital Removal Committee to move the Capital to Wheeling.⁵

He owned 20 acres on Wheeling Island where the W. VA State Fair was held. He was Secretary of the VA Exposition and State Fair Association. In 1882, when he left Wheeling for other fields to conquer, he sold his property to the Fair Association.⁶

George had married Leila Jane Stephens of Wheeling 27 Sept. 1862. She was born in March 1836, daughter of Edward Williams Stephens and Mary A. Stephens.⁷ George and Leila had one son, Edward Williams Stephens Tingle, born 14 July, 1863, and two daughters, Kate Thomas Tingle, born 1866, and Mary Leila Burt Tingle, born 1870.⁸

In January, 1871, not long after the birth of Leila Burt, George's wife died, and for 4 years George was a widower.⁹ But on 21 June, 1876, he married Mary Frances Robertson whose family had come to Wheeling from New Orleans.¹⁰ Their son, George Robert Tingle, was born in 1876.¹¹

By 1882 George's oldest son, Edward W.S. Tingle was away at school at Harvard. (George did believe in giving his children a good education). So when George moved from Wheeling he took his wife, daughters and little 6 year old George Jr. to Montana, then a Territory.¹²

Early in July they arrived in the town of Glendive and their arrival was duly noted by the local paper which stated that George "moved into General Merrill's cottage and will build a handsome residence." Not a bad advance notice, eh?¹³

In the Fall of '82 the Protestant Episcopal Society of Glendive was organized by Rev. Horsfell and none other than George Tingle, with 11 members.¹⁴

He jumped into the real estate business and became local agent for the Northern Pacific Railroad Co. and the Yellowstone Land and Colonization Co. For George, this new country must have really seemed the land of opportunity.¹⁵

In 1883, when Edward W.S. graduated from Harvard, he went west to join his father in real estate. In those days 4 room apartments rented for $18 per month.¹⁶

George was involved in public and private projects. He was the first person appointed by the President as a member of the Territorial House of Representatives from Dawson County, Montana. It was said of him that he was "not a brilliant man, but an honest one."¹⁷

In 1885 he was on the move again, having been appointed U.S. Agent in charge of the Fur and Seal Fisheries in the Bering Sea, Alaska. The family settled in San Francisco where he became an expert on Alaskan fisheries and sent numerous reports on this subject to Congressional Committees in Washington, D.C.¹⁸ He traveled extensively but San Francisco seemed to remain his home for some years.

In 1898 George wrote the now famous letter Sid Tingle found among his father's papers. It was mailed from Washington, D.C. to A.H. Tingle of Butte, Nebraska and the letterhead proclaimed him Gen. Manager of the Northern Pacific and Alaska Mining, Transportation and Trading Co., which should have covered just about everything.¹⁹

George's second wife, Mary Frances, had died in San Francisco 12 Dec. 1889,²⁰ and George died, aged 67 in August 1903 in Wichita, Kansas.²¹ His body was brought back to Wheeling for burial in Greenwood Cemetery²² and the services at church for his funeral were attended by a "very large number of the deceased's acquaintances, neighbors and friends. Miss McConnaghy, the organist, and Mrs. F. Frazier, Miss B. McCoy and Messrs. Arch Taylor and Hal Campbell rendered Nearer My God to Thee, and Lead Kindly Light very sweetly.

The casket was hidden almost completely from view with beautiful floral emblems of love and esteem from relatives and friends.

Relatives present included George's two sons and two daughters one of whom, Miss Leila of New York, "had engaged her passage on the Saturday's steamer for Europe, but the trip has been postponed."²³

Seems as tho Miss Leila inherited her father's itchy foot. I wish I had inherited his energy.

Tax man has gift for gab

By Carol Perkins (P. 1A)
Staff writer 13 Aug 1989, Meridian
STAR

Lauderdale County Tax Collector Charles Tingle's gift for gab has been indispensable during his long and varied career in the public eye.

From a stint in the U.S. Navy during World War II in the radio room aboard the USS Houston to civilian jobs with Western Union, South Central Bell, the Meridian Police Department and most recently, as an elected public official, Mr. Tingle has been communicating with his fellow man.

Mr. Tingle joined the police force in 1951 at the age of 35 because, as he puts it, "I had a lot of admiration for people and the desire to help" them and "be of service if I could."

Some of his most memorable moments during his more than 20 years in law enforcement were as a juvenile officer, which he said "afforded me the opportunity to be a counselor as well as a policeman."

Like many other officers on the force, Mr. Tingle "moonlighted" to supplement his income. That second job as a designated dealer agent in used cars not only provided him with some experience that comes in handy in his tax-collecting job, but also led to his love for antique automobiles.

"We were going up to St. Louis and getting all these old cars" that, at the time, he said, could be purchased for $100-200.

"You could take them and buff them out and make a real nice automobile. It just got to the point that you just kind of got addicted to cleaning them up and watching them run," he said.

Driving around in an old automobile is a "great experience," he said, recalling a recent trip to Carmichael in a "caravan" of older cars.

"People just stopped along the highway, in the fields and front yards and waved," he said. "It's just a fascinating thing when you see one [an old car] on the highway ... It really takes us all back -- however far we go back in life."

Of his own 1955 Buick, Mr. Tingle said, "most everywhere" he goes in it, "someone will say, 'I sure do like that.'" He said people will tell him, "My daddy had one just like that when I was going to school," or "Daddy got me one like that when I was going to college, and I'll never forget it."

Mr. Tingle recalls that when he retired from the police department in 1982, he did not want to "just retire and quit" working altogether, and before long, he was considering the possibility of running for the office of county tax collector.

"I just got to thinking that with my experience with the law -- which this job requires -- and my experiences with the automobiles and titling and tags, that I might could utilize that experience." Also, he noted, "somewhere along the way I think I discovered that" the tax collector at the time was not going to run for re-election.

Mr. Tingle, who is now in his second term in office, says that his being elected to the post "was an opportunity to continue my work with the public that I thoroughly enjoy."

House calls a ritual in Northern Neck

By Overton McGehee
Times-Dispatch state staff

LIVELY — The sun had just risen on the Northern Neck when Dr. Norman Rock Tingle Sr. made his first house call of the day.

He came in from the cold, removed his gloves and rubbed the blood pressure cuff to warm it before he wrapped it around Vernon Conley's arm.

"How have you been, Vernon?" Dr. Tingle asked as he took Conley's blood pressure.

The visit with Conley and his wife, Virginia, is a weekly ritual. Conley, a farmer, has been confined to bed since a stroke six years ago.

Dr. Tingle is a country doctor who still makes house calls.

"Practically all the doctors on the Northern Neck make some house calls," Dr. Tingle said. "If there weren't that sort of service, more people would have to be in nursing homes."

Dr. Tingle's patients were accustomed to house calls when he joined an older doctor in the Lancaster County practice in 1952. He has continued to make them every working day for 36 years. Now he is able to split the rounds with his son, Dr. Norman Rock Tingle Jr., who joined the practice last year.

"Now we have two doctors who do house calls," Mrs. Conley said.

"Two of the best," Conley said. Dr. Tingle, 68, grew up in Richmond County. He was introduced to medicine as a Navy surgical aide during World War II. He studied at the University of Virginia and the Medical College of Virginia, thanks to the Navy V-12 program and the GI Bill.

Only timing prevented him from returning to the Navy when he finished medical school. "There was a period of just a few months in 1952, when the Navy didn't want doctors."

The circumstances were providential for the Northern Neck. In 1952, Dr. Tingle and his wife, Selma, returned to the area so he could practice with the physician who had been his boyhood family doctor. Dr. C.T. Peirce had been practicing since 1900.

"He was a legend," Dr. Tingle said. "He practiced for 64 years. I've only been going half that long."

The Tingles' office building is still the Peirce-Tingle Clinic, "out of respect for him," Dr. Tingle said.

"When I started in 1952, half of our practice was house calls. But it's better to have people come in, if they are able. We can give better care in the office."

Even among invalids, Dr. Tingle has fewer house calls to make than a few years ago. "Home health services have picked up part of the load and we have fewer emergency calls, now that there is a rescue squad. That helps a lot."

Dr. Tingle is a compact, vigorous man who charges through each day. With patients, his actions are businesslike, but his manner is gentle.

He looks dapper making house calls wearing a blazer and bow tie. On his lapel is a small silver cross.

Dr. Tingle has taught Sunday school at Bethel United Methodist Church for 35 years. He also substitutes for ministers occasionally as a lay speaker. The younger Dr. Tingle and his wife also are devout Christians and considered going into foreign mission work.

"I told them this is a mission, too," Dr. Tingle said. "I didn't want to influence them too much, but it's very gratifying to have someone to turn the practice over to."

The patients, some of whom worried that Dr. Tingle was overworked, have welcomed his son. Both have nicknames. The father is "Doctor Jiggs;" the son is "Doctor Rocky."

On his early morning visit to the Conley farm, the elder Dr. Tingle examined Conley and scheduled his next visit.

"Let us know if you need us before then," he said, as he does on every visit.

"He has a good nurse," Dr. Tingle said of Mrs. Conley. "I told her I want her to take care of me if I ever get sick."

Dr. Tingle's next stop was just down the road. There, Andrew Haynie sat on the edge of the bed, rubbing his tousled white hair.

"I'm not a well man, doc," he said. "I had a terrible night. Every time I sleep, I wake up as sick as I can be," said Haynie, who has liver cancer.

"I know you've had a lot of pain to put up with," Dr. Tingle said. "Have the painkillers helped?"

As Dr. Tingle examined him, Haynie's sense of humor returned, despite the pain. "You getting ready to go out on a date, Doc?" he asks. "You smell nice."

"This is hard for him," Dr. Tingle said later. "He likes to work. He's not used to being sick."

Dr. Tingle should know. He's been visiting the big old farmhouse to treat the Haynie family since he came back home to practice.

"I delivered at least one of their children in that house. I particularly remember that one, because they named him for me."

After his house calls, Dr. Tingle drove to the waterside village of Morattico, to speak to a friend whose father had died the night before. Then he returned to the clinic in time for visiting hours, which begin at 9 a.m.

Dr. Tingle said he doesn't regret returning to the Northern Neck to live the life of a country doctor. "It hasn't been lucrative, but it has been enormously gratifying," Dr. Tingle said.

"Now I'm treating the children of babies I delivered. That's very gratifying."

Mrs. Dixie T. Willis has prepared the following article which details the genealogy of Dr. Tingle's ancestors and descendants. He is a ninth generation descendant in a direct line from Hugh Tingle of England who emigrated to Maryland in 1669. All of us interested in the family newsletter are appreciative of the research and time spent by Dixie in developing this interesting chronicle, and we thank Dr. Tingle for supplying the information relative to recent generations of his family line.

"Norman Rock Tingle was born May 15, 1921 in Washington, North Carolina, the son of John Noah Tingle and Josephine Rock. He graduated from Farnham High School, Richmond County, VA in 1938, the family having moved there when he was ten years old.

Norman joined the regular Navy in 1940, serving in the Hospital Corps. Here he gained the rating as a Pharmacist Mate 1st class. He was also Surgical Tech. In 1944 he transferred to the University of Virginia in Navy V 12 training. In 1945 WWII was over. He returned to complete his studies in pre-med at UVA, finished in 1946 and went to the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond, Virginia, where he graduated with a M.D. degree in 1951.

Norman was married to Selma E. Givens of Craig County, Virginia in 1946, who is a graduate of Radford College.

9th generation. Norman and Selma have three children: Norman Rock Tingle, Jr., born 1952, Susanna Cleo Tingle born in 1954, and Thomas Givens Tingle in 1957. Dr. Norman interned at Stuart Circle in Richmond, Virginia in 1951 and 1952. He began family practice in Lancaster County in 1952 and still practices there.

8th generation. John Noah Tingle, born June 18, 1889 was the son of William Noah and Mollie Ipock died May 19, 1955. He married Josephine Rock of Virginia. To them was born John Noah Tingle, Jr., May 19, 1914, who married Virginia Tuck, June 27, 1936. Carl Willis Tingle born November 18, 1915 died July 11, 1930. Mary Elizabeth Tingle born May 16, 1919 married Herbert C. Shannon. Norman Rock Tingle, born May 15, 1921, married Selma E. Givens on July 20, 1946. William Andre Tingle, born October 22, 1926, married Ella Margaret Martin (divorced). Lucyle Carlton Tingle, born June 13, 1930, married D.C. Merriwether (divorced)

7th generation. William Noah Tingle, born January 3, 1851, died April 4, 1898. He was the son of Noah Tingle and Margaret Broughton. William married Mollie Ipock, November 22, 1883. He lived to be 47 years old. After his demise, Mollie remarried to Hesekiah Carl Willis.

Their children: Lillie Rachel Tingle, born September 8, 1884, died October 20, 1964 married Robert Lee Stallings December 7, 1910. Alvis Malbrun Tingle, born February 15, 1887, died April 26, 1951 married Nellie Barker November 29, 1911. Alvis and Nellie lived in Asheville, North Carolina where they operated TINGLES RESTAURANT. Their son, Alvis, continues to run the restaurant, and is on the mailing list for "TINGLE DESCENDANTS." John Noah Tingle, Sr., born June 18, 1889 died May 19, 1955, married Josephine Rock. William James Tingle born January 20, 1894 died April 3, 1956. He married Louise Potter; they had no children. Thomas A. Tingle, born February 19, 1898 died May 23, 1983. Thomas did not marry.

At this point, I will inform you that I cannot prove that William Noah Tingle was the son of Noah and Margaret Broughton, even though I know it is true. I will give my reasons.

Noah's mother was Sarah Miller, daughter of John Miller. She had a brother named Noah. This is the first Noah in the Tingle line, William Noah was the second and John Noah the third.

Also, Margaret was the daughter of William Broughton, who in 1829 took her to Rev. Isaac Pipkin to be educated. He was also to board her. This is in a deed book #49, page 148, 16 February 1829. In the 1850 Census, as you know the first census to give first names, Noah was 30 years old and Margaret 27. They had three children. Since William Noah was not born until January 3, 1851, he was left off the Census. Since Margaret's father's name was William, she gave it to her son, William Noah. Another reason is that Noah and Margaret lived in the Swift Creek section of Craven County which is north of New Bern. Noah bought land in that area in 1841 and sold it to Hervy Anderson in 1849. William Noah is buried sorta in back of the Old Gault Motel, along side a field.

6th generation. Noah Tingle was born November 1820; 1850 Census gave his age as 30. He married Margaret Broughton November 18, 1839; he died early 1866. In June of that year, Margaret appears in Court and asks for a years provisions to be set aside for her and the children. In the December term, 1866, (due to her education) she asks to be appointed Executrix of Noah's estate and received it.

Their children: James Tingle, born circa 1841 (all three ages are based on 1850 Census) married Mary Gaskins September 13, 1865; Ferebee born circa 1843, Thomas born circa 1848, William Noah born January 3, 1851 married Mollie Ipock, born July 3, 1854 and died September 1, 1943.

5th generation. Sylvester Tingle, must have been an only child of Shadrack Tingle. Shadrack married Sally McCotter August 8, 1794 and was dead in 1799. Sylvester Tingle married Sarah Miller January 14, 1820; he died mid-year 1842. Their children: Noah born November or December 1820 and died early 1866; Burney Sylvester Tingle born 1841 and married Nancy A. Lupton died 1918; Clarissa, born circa 1837 married John S. Riggs; Richard born circa 1831 and married Rachel Powers after the Civil War was over; Sally Ann, born December 1, 1835 married Charles S. Pipkin February 16, 1852; Joseph born circa 1824; Elizabeth Ann born circa 1826 or 27 married John S. Riggs February 27, 1843 and when she died April 1860, he married her sister Clarissa. Elizabeth Ann was the ancestor of Elizabeth Brantley of Williamston, North Carolina; Thomas died as an infant.

4th generation. Shadrack Tingle born circa 1773 married Sally McCotter August 12, 1794. Sally's father, Martin McCotter sued for custody of his grandson and was awarded it. If there were other children, I have not found them. Martin McCotter also brought suit against David and Thomas Tingle; the reason is not clear to me. I think they were cousins and not brothers, unless they were from an earlier marriage. This information was found in Craven County North Carolina Court minutes.

3rd generation. Joseph Tingle born in Maryland, came to North Carolina between 1750 and 1752, the years that Hugh made large land purchases. No one has been able to learn who his first wife was, but he married Mary Jones March 20, 1766. Joseph lived in the Bay River area of Craven County. The land that Hugh Jr. purchased was described as being in the forks of Bay River; they did not live in Beaufort County, only listed taxes there and registered deeds, because they were uncertain as to where they lived. It was likely closer by boat than New Bern was. There was a man named Joseph Burney who must have lived close to where the Tingle's lived. I know where Joseph Burney was buried, the very old house is Tingle owned now, but was built by the Wises. The Josephs obviously became friends as they witnessed deeds and wills for each other, and replaced each other as overseer of the road. Joseph Tingle even had a grandson named Joseph Burney Tingle. Burney became a popular name with the McCotters; there was more than one Burney McCotter, as well as Burney Tingle. Joseph's children were: Israel, married Martha Tingle; David; Joseph Jr., married Elizabeth Brothers March 9, 1782. Lucretia, married David Holton January 12, 1782; Shadrack married Sally McCotter, August 12, 1794; Thomas married Zelphia Cuthrell October 14, 1807. Perry married Rhoda Vendrick, July 3, 1802.

The last two children were Sally and Sidney; I believe to be twins and were by Mary Jones. Sally married John Banks April 10, 1800; no marriage listed for Sidney.

Joseph had several land transactions and left a Will.

2nd generation. Hugh Tingle, Jr. was born circa 1686 in Somerset County, Maryland. We find no record of whom he married. He was in the Maryland Militia in 1749. His first land purchase in Craven County, North Carolina was in 1750, another one in 1752. In 1755 Hugh Tingle and sons listed taxes in Beaufort County, his Will was dated September 10, 1764; he listed his children as follows: Hugh III

1st generation. Hugh Tingle (the progenitor) came into the colony of Maryland in 1669, likely as a young man. December 21, 1687 he married Elizabeth Powell, daughter of Walter Powell. He left a will dated August 22, 1733. His children were: Hugh Jr. born circa 1686; Samuel born 1684 and died 1721; Margaret, married Richard Hudson; Sarah, married Charles Collins; Elizabeth, married John Sauls; John married Mary? died 1737; Daniel, died circa 1763."

GLADYS TINGLE OF ATLANTA, GEORGIA (- 1972)

The late Ernest M. Tingle of Meridian, Mississippi, carried on an extensive correspondence with many Tingle families before his death in August 1987. From his files we are reproducing in this issue of the newsletter a copy of a most illuminating letter from Gladys Tingle Medlock, Atlanta, Georgia to her first cousin, James Tingle.

This lady certainly did honor to the Tingle name. As noted at the top of her letter, James Tingle said she was the daughter of Lem and Hattie Tingle of Jackson, Georgia and that she died of a heart attack before the letter was mailed. It is hoped that one or more of our readers will write to your editor and fill in more of the biographical facts concerning her life. Tingle descendants everywhere should know more about this interesting woman.

"This was written by Gladys Tingle Medlock, daughter of Lem and Hattie Tingle of Jackson, Georgia. She died of a heart attack before the letter was mailed and her husband sent it to me. They had no children. She was my first cousin.

James Tingle

Atlanta, Georgia
August 20, 1972

Dear James,

At long last I'm sending you the Tingle family information which I have. It is not complete but it is better than nothing. Most of Papa's brothers and sisters had to use my records to get on Social Security or other government plans. I was so glad I had made a copy so long ago. I understand Aunt Claude gave the family Bible to her people.

Note that our grandfather's father and his grandfather were named Daniel Tingle. When I was in England on one of my trips there, I spent as much time as I had looking up the Tingle family. There was a skip of two generations, but I did find a Daniel Tingle buried in Sussex Township. Also his father was also named Daniel. I did not have time to go more and I did not make any records then for I knew I would be back the next year and maybe have more time then. The next year there was a transportation strike so I couldn't get out of London. I've been in England seven times, but each time my expenses were paid by American Bar Association or the International Association of Women Lawyers or Iota Tau Tau, International Legalsorority of United Nations and most of my time was scheduled by the organization before I left the U.S.

The monuments I saw were very distinctive and, I would say, very expensive so I doubt our relatives there were too poor. I noted that one was a lawyer and another an engineer. If I ever get back there I will surely make notes as I go.

If I ever have any free time I will check on death dates. As you know I was assistant to the Presiding Judge of the Court of Appeals for 22 years and before that a Judge on a lesser appeals tribunal. All the time my office was on the same block with the Office of Vital Statistics, but I just didn't get to check the records for I wanted to do that in person.

Now for a few words about my life. I have seven college degrees. Mama and Papa wanted me to get a good education and I did. I have four honorary degrees in law, two in Doctor of Law, one in Doctor Juris and Doctor of Jurisprudence. So I am entitled to the title of either Judge or Doctor.

I have seen most of the world. My last trip around the world was in 1968. I enjoyed all the travels, but of course I had to make speeches, etc. because that's what I was paid for.

Now, since I retired from the court, I have a job, created for me, which requires reading of many government bulletins on anti-trust points. My office is in Wilmington, Delaware. Most of the work is by phone. When I am called, I had better know the answer.

I was sorry to miss the reunion. I'm proud of the Tingles and it's always nice to see the families. I hope to see you next reunion.

CAPTAIN CLARENCE LLEWELLYN TINGLE (1847-1915),
A BRAVE MAN, AND HIS SON, SEVERN MURRAY TINGLE (1881-1949)

A new correspondent to our newsletter, although a long-time reader of its pages, is Mrs. Sarah Tingle Everding of Kensington, Maryland. She has prepared the following biographies of her father, Severn Murray Tingle, and her grandfather, Clarence Llewellyn Tingle. Thank you for sharing this interesting family history with us, Mrs. Everding.

"Clarence Llewellyn Tingle was the second son of 'Gentleman' John Tingle by his second wife, Mary A. E. Tingle, and was born in Berlin, Maryland in 1847. At the age of sixteen he left home and went to sea, beginning his career as a sailor on the Delaware Bay, and rose speedily to become the Bay's highest paid pilot.

On August 3, 1870, he married Miss Emma Jane Murray of Baltimore Hundred (now Frankford, Delaware), and eventually became the father of Clarence Herbert, Severn Murray, Emma Simpson, Nellie Blance and John Robbins. Two others did not survive infancy.

Apparently, he was an accomplished wood carver, as he made a large, square Victorian residence (dollhouse) for his daughter, Emma, with miniature furniture and figures which were dressed by his sister-in-law, Sarah Elizabeth Murray, a talented needle-woman of her time. The dollhouse later became the centerpiece for an innovative and elaborate Christmas display - a winter scene and summer farm scene at opposite ends of the drawing room in the Tingle house at 218 Dickinson Street in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. This was certainly a large project each year which the entire family undertook, starting after Thanksgiving until it was taken down and put away in March of the following year, as people from all around Philadelphia came to view it.

Unfortunately, cameras in those days were rare for home use, so only a scant description is now possible. One can only imagine!

In 1900, after having risen in rank and position several years earlier, Captain Tingle was transferred to New York City, and moved his family to Bayonne, New Jersey. By this time, he was in charge of a passenger vessel which sailed between New York and Boston each week for fifteen years. Unfortunately, in 1915, his ship was rammed by another in a fog off the coast of Woods' Hole, Massachusetts. Captain Tingle stayed with his ship, but in trying to save another survivor, lost his life and went down with the ship."

CAPTAIN CLARENCE LLEWELLYN TINGLE (1847-1915) A BRAVE MAN, AND HIS SON, SEVERN MURRAY TINGLE (1881-1949) (continued)

"Severn Murray Tingle, the second son of Clarence Llewellyn Tingle and Emma Jane Tingle (nee Murray) was born in Philadelphia, PA, on December 5, 1881.

As a very young child, he showed a noteworthy, artistic talent, and was given private art lessons for several years with Mrs. Mame Walker (friend of the family and well-known art teacher in Philadelphia) prior to moving to Bayonne, New Jersey in 1900. That year he studied further at Cooper-Union for the Advancement of Science and Art, receiving a diploma in 1901. Many of his artistic endeavors he gave to various relatives and friends as gifts, but his finest have remained with his daughter, Sarah E. Tingle Everding, Kensington, Maryland.

In 1971, the above noted paintings were shown to Dr. H. Lester Cooke, then Curator of the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C. Dr. Cooke was most impressed and wanted to place my father's name in a book of American artists not previously recognized. However, before this could be accomplished, Dr. Cooke passed away. Later, it was discovered that none of Dr. Cooke's files and photographs of paintings were kept current, and that no interest was shown by the Gallery in preserving them, certainly a loss to the artistic community as well as to future visitors.

During Mr. Tingle's painting days, he believed that to make it his life's work would be futile, since during his time few Americans ever gained much recognition for their art or financial remuneration to follow as did Winslow Homer, Frederic Church and the first of the Wyeths. So, in 1905, he gave up painting entirely and became an accountant in a Wall Street firm. A true artist could not do both!

He married Miss Mina Dirickson Bell of Berlin, Maryland, on June 11, 1923, and was the father of two; Sarah Elizabeth and Severn Murray, II (deceased). He was a 32nd degree Mason of the Scottish Rite, and passed away on February 8, 1949."

JAMES TINGLE OF DELAWARE AND INDIANA (c1764-1848),
HIS SON WILLIAM OF DELAWARE (1804-) AND GRANDSON
MANAAN OF DELAWARE AND MARYLAND (1830-1915)

Some eighteen years ago it was the good fortune of your editor to meet Z. Howard Tingle, president and owner of the Tingle Music Company in Salisbury, Maryland. This branch of the Tingles, known as the 'Descendants of Manaan and Mary Truitt Tingle', initiated a family reunion beginning in October 1955 which was held in the Melson's Community House, Melson's, Wicomico County, Maryland, with an attendance of two hundred.¹ The event took place annually every fall - at least up to 1973. Perhaps some of our readers might know if the gatherings are still held.

Mr. Tingle prevailed upon his mother, Mrs. Stella Mary Hollaway Tingle, to lend me the family Bible of William and Catherine Tingle (who were married in 1828) so that I might make a transcript of the entries for presentation to the Maryland Historical Society for safe-keeping in their manuscript division. It was indeed a kind gesture that preserves this document, now known as "The Holy Bible of Manain Tingle."

The first entries in the Bible proved a formidable barrier in research, starting with "William Tingle, the son of James Tingle and Leah Tingle his wife was born November the 4th day of the year of our Lord 1804."² Leah turned out to have been Leah Lockwood before her marriage.³ James appears to have been born about 1764 in Delaware.⁴ At this writing the names of his parents have not been documented.

It seems that James and Leah Tingle married in Delaware, year unknown, and about 1828 migrated to Eaton in Preble County, Ohio. Here he died in 1848 at age eighty-four.⁵ This was just about the time that William (his son) and Catherine Long were married in Dagsboro Hundred, Sussex County, Delaware, the date being 16 October 1828.⁶ The bride was the daughter of Jessy and Nancy Long.⁷

William was one of at least six children of James and Leah Tingle. There may have been others. Listed in order of birth, they were all born in Delaware:⁸

Nathaniel Tingle (1st)	b. 5 Aug. 1792, d. young
John Tingle	b. 11 July 1797
Nathaniel Tingle (2nd)	b. 10 Mar. 1800, m. Rhoda _____
Elisha Tingle	b. 21 May 1802, m. Hetty Green _____
William Tingle	b. 4 Nov. 1804, m. Catherine Long
Samuel Lockwood Tingle	b. 16 Oct. 1808, m. (1) Clarissa Williams (2) Rachel M. Dopp

Of the above six brothers, Nathaniel (2nd) and Samuel Lockwood also went west to Ohio and/or Indiana.⁹ Nathaniel (1st) died young, John, Elisha¹⁰ and William remained in Delaware.

William Tingle, as noted, married Catherine Long and they were the parents of the following:¹¹

Mariah Tingle	b. 27 Aug. 1829
Manaan Tingle	b. 16 Dec. 1830, m. Mary Truitt
Albert Tingle	b. 30 Aug. 1832, m. Mahala Baker
Ann Tingle	b. 3 May 1834, d. 18 Mar. 1836
Matthias W. Tingle	b. 19 Dec. 1836, m. Mary Parker
Mary J. Tingle	b. 14 Jan. 1839, m. James H. Ingram
Derrick Tingle	b. 17 Dec. 1840, d. 30 Aug. 1843
David Bruce Tingle	b. 27 Dec. 1842, m. Sarah E. _____
Angeline Tingle	b. 2 Feb. 1848, d. 29 June 1849

Manaana Tingle was married 28 November 1850 to Mary Truitt by Rev. J. Green in Sussex County, Delaware.¹² The names of some of their children are taken from the family Bible while others were obtained from Census records, tombstones and other sources:

Sarah Tingle	b. 16 May 1850,

Matthias W. Tingle	b. 12 Jul. 1856,	m. Annie E. Workman

Daniel James Tingle	b. 18 Aug. 1874,	m. (1) Mary J. _____ (2) Martha J. Moore Wingate
Mary Jane Tingle	b. _____,	m. Jessie Thomas Workman

Manaana Tingle and his wife, Mary, are buried in a small plot of ground on the Roy West farm, east of Melson's Methodist Episcopal Church, near Delmar in Wicomico County, Maryland. When I last visited this site in May 1974 it was enclosed with a metal bar railing. Appropriate tombstones marked the two graves with the spelling 'MANAAN' on that of the husband's stone. This singular name has been variously spelled in numerous records as Menain, Manaane, Menan and Manane.

The names of those married to the children of William Tingle and to the children of Manaana Tingle have been gathered from many source recorded in the years since 1973. Readers of our newsletter who are descendants of any of the aforementioned Tingles are invited to correspond with the editor and to send old family records that will prove of wider interest to our readership.
